Core Knowledge (see also background information documents) Most Muslims believe they should live a good life. Muslims believe that when they die their actions in this life will help decide what happens next. Muslims believe Allah is watching them all the time. All their good deeds and thoughts and words will be kept as a record. When they die, Allah will decide whether they've been good enough to go to heaven or not. Allah – Muslim name for God  Zakat/Zakah – giving as a duty  Sadaqah – voluntary giving  Sawm/Saum – fasting (not eating or drinking for a period of time)  Ramadan – the month of fasting	When Islam started Muhammad told people that they were not living their lives in a way that Allah wanted. He pointed out that people needed to be more self-disciplined and also needed to look after those who were having a difficult time. Two of the five pillars still focus on this.	Muslims believe that everything they have has come from Allah. They also believe that Allah expects them to use what they have properly. So, if someone is in need a Muslim should help them. Giving spare money every year is a way of helping others, giving to charity helps Muslims appreciate what they have.	In this enquiry, we build on the work on prayer and pilgrimage. The five pillars are important to most Muslims as they show them how to help others, live life in the right way and respect Allah.
